POULTRY

FRESH WATER FOR POULTRY

Simple Wholesome Arrangement is shown in illustration, insuring Clean Drinking Vessel.

Do interiors are unwholesome for man or beast. Numerous windows should be cut in canvas previously dried, particularly in the south and east and a few in the west side. These should be half inch, blazed at the bottom and opening inward, as shown in the accompanying illustration. The triangular space between the sash and sides should be closed. The sash should be regulated by pins so that it can be opened to whatever extent desired. The top of the window should be near the ceiling of the stable. Be sure to keep the windows open.

One way to remove the foul air is to construct round galvanized iron or wooden shafts. The latter should be made of tightly fitted matched boards. The interior opening of the shafts should be about a foot from the floor, with a flap near the ceiling to be opened and shut, as required. The exterior opening should be several feet above the highest point of the barn roof. The shaft should contain a damper to regulate the outflow. It is difficult without having a particular stable in mind to give specific directions concerning location or the number and the size of shafts. In general it may be said that one large flue will prove more effective than several small ones. This arrangement, however, must be governed somewhat by the form of the stable.

Allowing some 40 cubic ft. of air space for each animal, a 12 by 2 feet, inside measure, should change the air sufficiently often for a stable containing twenty cows. Whenever the construction allows it, the shaft should be of the same height.

It should be either of air intake to place a drainage gutter.

sert their heads between these strips of lath. The cover over the pan and the strips of lath at the sides prevent the fowl from fouling the water in any manner, except in the act of drinking.

Where drinking pans of this kind are used, it is very easy to cleanse and scald them with hot water as occasion demands.

This arrangement can be carried a little further by placing a pan, or what would be still better, a long, narrow dish, something like a tin bread tray, on a low shelf a few inches from the floor, and blinging the cover to one side of the poultry house so that it can be tipped up in front for the removal of the dish or for filling it with water. Whatever device is used, it must be easily cleaned and of free access to the fowls at all times.

Getting Good Cows.

It's trying to put two different ideas under one lid. If you wish a dairy cow, breed and care should persistently and uninterruptedly suggest milk production. It is impossible to secure a good cow by going out into the world and crying, "Co, boss!" says a writer in American Cultivator. There are but two ways open—one that of buying and the other that of breeding. Buying is risky even for an experienced man. A woman who loves cows is often a better judge.

In breeding cows the farmer works in partnership with nature and nature, having a great deal of time, is never in a hurry. So the man dies before the work is fully completed. Having got a good cow, the owner should strive to keep her in that condition. She is not a machine, like a gasoline engine, and she needs a good deal more care. She does well in the spring and summer because she has plenty of food and water. To do well in the fall and winter she must be kept comfortable and also have plenty of food and water.

Where Tuberculosis Breeds.

Tuberculosis does not find its victims among the scrub cows that browse the roadsides in summer and find shelter behind strawstacks in winter; nor among those who roam in wide, well watered pastures and are buried in barns through whose cracks the snows and winds of winter sift. It is among the herds whose winter quarters are basement dungeons, where little air and less sunlight find entrance, and those that are warmly housed and lightly fed on rations calculated to force the secretion of milk to the utmost limit that the severest losses occur. It is particularly a disease of pampered animals. The highly bred animal is not essentially more susceptible; the fault is with the man who should be "ahead of the cow" instead of "behind her." There are extremes of the human studies of the ignorant and the unnatural treatments untaught by the "scientific breeder."

The latter class will be the first to realize their mistake and rectify it. The former will need a deal of education and demonstration in the line of non-farming.

Old hammock makes a fine net for this purpose.

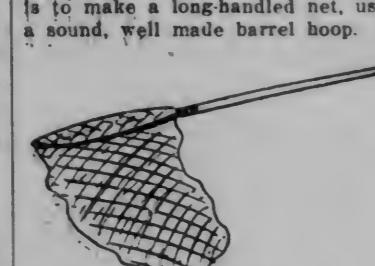

The net should be about two feet deep. Lay it down, mouth up, put a few grains of corn on top, pretend you are looking the other way, and when a chicken steps on the net to pick up the corn lift it suddenly, tip it slightly to one side, and you have the fowl safe. If you are particularly expert, the net may be dropped down over the bird.

Handling Ducks and Geese.

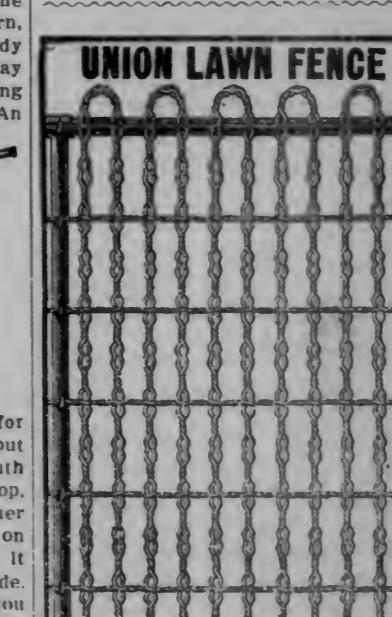

Always handle ducks and geese by their necks and never by the legs, as fowls are handled, for these limbs are not strong enough to serve as handles and will readily break.

War on Lice.

Make continual war on the lice if your poultry house is infested with them. If free from them, see to it that your premises are kept free.

Chicken Net.

Costs very little, drives very safely for lawns, door yards, garages, back yards, etc., nothing for lawns, door yards, field, bog and boggy.

Editorial at the Greenville, Ky., post office as second-class matter.

The inventor of the "free lunch" is dead, but the patrons of his service enjoy perennial existence.

Amidst Hamil's jewels have been sold at auction, and now Porting has a crown or two and some other appurtenances of royalty she is anxious to sell. There are great times for bargains in crowns and crown jewels.

THAT Georgia Sheriff who hanged a negro in the local opera house because it was raining outside may have thought that he was doing the spectators a good turn by saving them from a rainy, but such levity of human life cannot be denied. Some day the people will realize that lynch, operate more other cause in migration which

and that not so many on the fate of admiringly supposed to hang upon men to the New York house and post office. The by the postmaster of theolis was reappointed and cared a continental about after except probably the off itself. Incidentally it may be remarked that his name is Morgan, and that he is said to be a very capable official. Such an episode shows how far the country has traveled since the days of 1851, when President Garfield's appointment to the New York custom house split the Republican party in two and led to Gurnee's fatal shot.

The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals is erecting in New York city a free dispensary, with hospital accommodations, for the treatment of afflicted animals. There will also be attached a shelter for homeless dogs and cats. The dispensary and clinic for horses, dogs and cats will be modern in every particular, and stabling also will be provided for horses, though it is the intention to confine this service, so far as possible, to "first aid" cases. There is no finer proof of advanced civilization than the extension of "that mercy we to others show" to the others of the brute creation who are dumb and helpless. There ought to be more at dog and horse hospitals in the land. They are schools for that larger charity which finds good in everything and soothing for every woe, whether of man or beast.

Recovery.

Among persons who may be classed as being of normal health and physique, there will never be found variations in recuperative power so great that they can be described only as mysterious.

This capacity for recuperation—for the quick regaining of physical losses—is the normal gift of healthy childhood and youth. What mother has not had the experience of finding one of her brood suddenly and alarmingly ill? Pains all over the body, high temperature, prostration—no wonder she sends for the physician and waits in terror for his diagnosis! If he is wise in the ailments of childhood, he will not venture a diagnosis on that visit, for well he knows that by the next day the illness may prove to be anything—or nothing. He will order medicine for the relief of the immediate symptoms, consegi complete rest and quiet, with isolation from other children, and then await developments. The next morning he will not be surprised to find a well-developed rash, or a serious condition of the throat, or—strange to say—a rosy, healthy child, clamoring for food, and rebelling against the bed that it had crept to so willingly the day before.

In such a case every one concerned has acted just right—the mother, who in her quick alarm, took no chances, but sent for the doctor, the doctor, who, in his wisdom, got ready for war, but did not make it until he understood the challenge offered him, and the child, whom unconsciously played the youthful David to the Goliath of disease.

This wonderful power of recuperation, varying as it does with individuals, is essentially a prerogative of youth, and may be expected to wear out normally as age creeps on. In the young the word may be translated "throwing off," so completely do the young fling the enemy from them, but in older people is closer to the correct translation of the word "recuperate"—which means to regain, to get back what has been lost.

We often hear an aging person say, "I am as well as I ever was, but I do recuperate so quickly," and so a mile or two is gradually dropped from the usual walk, or social festivities are cut down, or the tempting trip forgone, because it is found that the bill of reparts is too much to pay for the pleasure. This is natural enough, and therefore not to be deplored. When nature hints, the wise heed and obey, not only to the lengthening of life, but vastly to the enjoyment of it while it lasts.

Winter Health.

A person who says, "I am never so well in the winter as I am in the summer," is very likely to use the tone of one who states a natural law, which must be accepted without question or struggle. The fact of poor health in winter is unfortunately common with many persons; the question is, Need it be?

No doubt more common sense and more self control is needed to command health through the winter months. The reasons are obvious. In the summer the most inveterate house dweller is driven into the open air; the hungriest meat-eater calls for fruit and salads; the stuffiest sleeper throws open the bedroom windows. The conditions forced on all of us, with the exception of extreme humid heat, the conditions that mean health. The result is that many persons who are generally below the level of their best health are at the highest point of physical efficiency in September and October, after their few months of enforced healthful living. From that time on, with the closing of doors and windows, and the resumption of heavy meals, they slip downward again.

They have no especial theory about the summer regime; it is only that they do what nature forces them to do. Their theories as to the winter regime, on the other hand, are both many and strange. An extreme terror of drafts and damp feet is offset by a callous indifference to stuffy sleeping rooms and reeking public places. Many people pass the entire winter in air unfit to breathe, if the short periods of time during which they are unwillingly outdoors in going from one building to another are excepted. Contentment.

Take it as I go along
That life must have its gloom,
That now and then the sound of song
Must fade from every room;
That every heart must know its woe,
Each door death's sadle sign.
Care fails to everyone, and so I try to bear with mine.
Misfortune is a part of life;
No one who listens here
Can dodge the bitterness of strife
Or pass without a tear.
Love proves the way for us to mourn,
Our pleasures breed regret,
One day a sparkling joy is born,
The next—our eyes are wet.

Each life is tintured with the pain
Of sorrow and of care.
As now and then comes clouds and rain,
Come hours of despair.
And yet the sunshine bursts anew,
And those who weep shed a smile,
For joy is always breaking the sigh
In just a little while.

It is the desire of every member of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Y.

one who helped to make the bazaar,
held on Friday last, such a success.
As this is an impossibility we take this means of expressing our gratitude for the hearty co-operation of the women of the entire community who furnished the many beautiful and useful things sold on this occasion. Not alone to the women are indebted, but also to the following merchants who came to the fair and furnished the lunch served that day: W. H. Brizendine & Co.

& Co. for space in their window in which we were able to display to such great advantage the articles for sale, also for the prize which they offered for best dressed doll;
Leslie Hale for the use of his tables, and especially are we grateful to the press for the liberal space granted
our advertisements in their columns for some weeks preceding sale, and all free of charge.

Several free-will offerings received and these together with results of sales amounted to something over $75.00, which sum coupled with enthusiasm aroused for the cause has done much to encourage the mem-

CITY ORDINANCES.

An Ordinance to regulate the use of Septic Tanks in the City of Greenville.

The City Council of the City of Greenville do ordain as follows:

That from and after May 1, 1912,
and within a reasonable time thereafter, every occupant or owner of any dwelling in the City of Greenville equipped with water shall construct on said premises a septic tank into which shall be conducted all outflow and sewage from such closets and toilets.

Said tanks shall be constructed of concrete with the top covering not to extend above the surface of the ground, and with walls, floors and coverings to be built not less than six inches in thickness. No tank shall be constructed of less dimensions than five feet in depth, four feet in width and seven feet in length and shall be constructed according to scientific and approved plans and shall be built at the direction and under the supervision of the Street Committee of the City of Greenville.

Any person or persons failing for an unreasonable time to comply with the provisions of this ordinance shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined in the sum of $25.00.

Filed Nov. 10, 1911.

Adopted Dec. 7, 1911.

The I. C. Machinist Strike Settled.
The strike that has been in force for about two months on the I. C.
system, in which were involved mechanists and office men, has been settled, and everything will soon be back in good shape. Efficient help in the mechanical department was hard to secure, and for the many hundreds of men who remained in the various shops, vast damage would have resulted to the engines and rolling stock for want of attention. Much inconvenience followed as it was. The men lost their contention for the recognition of the federation, but returned to work on the same basis as obtained when the strike was called. In this district the most important point affected was Paducah, where about 1,000 men were out, and they are practically all on again.

tive prices to parties wanting

Kitchen Bouquet 3 for 5 c., Knox's
Gelatine 3 for 5 c., Wright's Silver
Polish 3 for 5 c., Arm & Hammer Soda 6 for 25c. Anyone desiring these things will do well to take advantage of this opportunity, as all articles are perfectly fresh and very reasonable.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES.

Do not forget the election of Board members on next Tuesday at the building. The following are nominees: T. N. Belcher, John Brizendine, A. W. Duncan, Leslie
Hale, H. C. Lewis, M. B. McElroy, Paul Pannell, J. T. Reynolds, Jr.
and W. Taylor. There are to be five elected, one for two years and four for three years. Every active member of the association
should be on hand to vote.

The little classes will not meet next Sunday because of Xmas. But will meet on the 10th of Dec. In the contest the Intermediates and Juniors are tied for first place.
The standing is as follows: Intermediates, 185 points; Juniors, 185 points; Seniors, 80 points.

ACTIVE INDIAN RUNNER DUCK

Small Breed, noted for its Egg Production and Test of the Leghorn of the Duck Family.

(Dr. GROUSE) HOWARD
These ducks came originally from India; hence the name Indian. The term "runner" comes from the fact that they literally run instead of waddling like most ducks.

The Indian Runner is a breed of small utility duck noted for its egg production, and is often termed the Leghorn of the duck family. These ducks have been credited with records of more than 200 eggs each in flocks of ten, and 152 eggs each in flocks of one hundred. The "runners" are active in their habits, are good foragers, and on an extensive run are able to portion of their food. Duckies, are hardy and do not stand cold. Their flesh is of a fine quality and is rather market purposes.

Indian Runner
has a very formed head of gray and white color, preferred. The head is covered with cap and cheek feathers, a light lawn or gray, the feathers from the cheek being a narrow line of white, eight of an inch wide. The beak is long, fairly broad at the base. In the duckling it is of a yellow color, with green. When fully grown it will be green in color with black beans.

The eyes are of a hazel color and set light in the head. The neck is unusually long and slender and white in color from head to the beginning of the breast markings. The back is long and narrow and of a light lawn or gray color. The breast is round and of a light lawn or gray color, evenly divided along halfway between the point of the breast and the legs. The body is long, narrow and carried erect, with no indication of keel, somewhat resembling that of a Penquin in shape, and is of a light lawn or gray color. The wings are of medium length and carried close to the body, the shoulders and top part of the wings being of the same color as the breast. The tail is composed of hard, stiff feathers, the six feathers of the drake being well curled. The color of the tail is light lawn or gray. The legs should be of medium length and set well apart; the toes straight and connected by web. The shanks and toes should be of a deep, bright yellow.

The standard weight of the drake is 4½ pounds and of the duck 4 pounds.

POULTRY NOTES

Do not forget the shady weeks. The fowls need them.

Houses must be kept sanitary and the fowls free from vermin.

It is the even, steady thrift of our stock that makes them pay a profit.

The comb not only denotes sex, laying, but the general condition of the hen.

Lies are working havoc, and too severe measures cannot be adopted to destroy them.

Already the towns are getting a rusty appearance. It is getting near the molting season.

It should be remembered that chicks do not need any food for the first 12 to 24 hours after hatching.

It is preferable to keep a box of dry chaff constantly before the fowls, allowing them to eat all they wish.

To insure fertile eggs it is most essential that the breeding stock should be as well fed as timely mated.

The growing cockchicks should now be separated from the pullets, and the former given an extra allowance of feed.

Three-fourths of the diseases could be traced to impure air, dampness, improper food, close breeding and ill-chosen conditions.

A hen that goes around with her mouth open is not a comfortable hen; she is too warm. Give her a place to sit down and cool off.

Turn up the windows every night, but look says wide-meshed cloth of some kind over them to keep out things that have no business in the house.

If farmers would use the same judgment in feeding their poultry that they use in feeding their dairy cows they would soon find the results quite satisfactory.

As much poultry feed as possible should be grown on the farm, but additional feeds may be bought as necessary, such as bran, middlings, gluten meal or beef scraps.

"The Only Thing That Will Relieve Neuralgia."

The piercing pains of Neuralgia, which often follows a bad cold or LaGrippe, are frequently almost unbearable and few medicines afford any relief to the sufferer.

I am a rural mail carrier and have been a user of the Dr. Miles medicines for years.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills can't be beaten. They are the only thing I have found that will relieve my neuralgia and I have tried most everything, besides medicine from the doctor. I am willing to tell anyone what the Anti-Pain Pills did for me."

CHARLES HILDEBRANDT,
Box 205 Woodville, Ohio

If you, like Mr. Hildebrandt, "have tried most everything" in vain, why not do as he did, fight your aches and pains with Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills. Let the pills bear the brunt of the battle. No matter how stubborn the contest, they will come out victorious.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills stand on their record, which is a long list of cures extending back a generation.

Drugists everywhere sell them. If first package fails to benefit, your drugist will return your money.

MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind.

Indigestion

Stomach trouble is but a symptom of, and not a true disease. We think of Dyspepsia, Heartburn, and Indigestion as real diseases, yet they are symptoms of a certain disease—namely, sickness—nothing else.

It was this fact that first caused me to seek Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Restorative. Going direct to the stomach nerves, alone brought this success. I have never had any other medicine put this original and highly vital principle, no past lasting accomplishment were ever to be had.

For stomach distress, bloating, flatulence, bad breath, belching, heartburn, indigestion, constipation, tablets or liquid—and more for yourself what it can and will do. We sell and cheerfully recommend.
